RE: Reporting of Affected Acreage Correction

An error was made in the mailing out of Memorandum No. 89-12. The aggregate affected acreage form (MLCR 3) was inadvertently sent to the coal operators. Please find enclosed the coal affected acreage form (SCML 3) which is to be used in reporting affected acreage for coal mines.

Please accept our apology for any confusion which may have resulted from this error.

Mined Overburden

Areas to be included in this category include all land from which overburden has been removed and all areas where overburden has been deposited. Highwall and pit areas extending to the top of the highwall are to be included.

Surface Affected Area

This area includes all surface areas either disturbed, affected or used in support of or ancillary to mining operations activities. Roads, tipples, ditches, sediment control facilities, waste disposal, soil stockpile, and storage areas are included; however, it may be necessary to include other areas also. Once an area is reported as surface affected area, it need not be reported again. In subsequent years, only newly affected areas will be mapped to show the initial year the surface was affected.

Areas extending laterally (out to the side of the direction of pit advance) which have been disturbed by soil removal and/or other soil removal but will not be subjected to overburden removal, must be declared under the surface affected area category.

Those areas affected in advance of the highwall that have experienced only surface soil or root medium removal and will not be mined (not to experience overburden removal) must be mapped and the acreage included in this category.

This category also includes those operations having surface mining activities which recover coal from a deposit that is not in its original geologic location such as coal waste disposal areas, (i.e., carbon recovery operations).

Soil Removal Only

This category includes all areas from which only surface soil and/or root medium has been removed or stockpiled or other disturbed areas (i.e., ditches, roads) that will be mined at a later date.

Reaffected Acreage

- A. _____ acres. Acreage which has been remined. (If known, please specify when and by whom the acreage was mined initially).
- B. _____ acres. Acreage which has been previously declared as support facility disturbance.
- C. _____ acres. Carbon recovery operations on previously disturbed acreage. (If known, please specify when and by whom the acreage was initially disturbed).
